SB Approves 'Crew Cuts' Concert Here

Student sponsorship of a concert by the "Crew Cuts" was approved at the monthly meeting of the student body last Thursday.

The green light was also given to the Student Senate to proceed with the formation of a pep club. In the only other action, preliminary approval was given the 1956 Student Body Project.

The "Crew Cuts," of "Sh Boom" fame, along with Blue Barron's Orchestra, are scheduled to appear in Knight Gym Tuesday, April 24, 1956.

Under the terms of the contract presented by sophomore Stan Vogel, Student Activities chairman, the student body must guarantee the singers a minimum of $1,250 with the musical group having the option of taking 60 per cent of the gross receipts.

$400 From Activities

According to Vogel, Student Activities will put up $400—enough to make the down payment. This money is surplus accumulated over the past several years in the Student Activities Fund.

The concert discussion, most provocative item on the agenda, raised the query: "Can the student body take a chance on raising $1,250?" Student consensus indicated strong sentiment in favor of the project.

Student opinion was more divided on the matter of formation of a pep club. According to senior Bob Vogel, research chairman, the purpose of such an organization would be to stimulate school spirit, coordinate pep activities and arrange travel for out of town games.

Formal Or Not?

Discussion centered around whether the pep club would be a formal or an informal organization, and whether or not it would tend to promote a clique within the cheering group.

Under the setup approved by students, the newly organized group will be directed by a five-member steering committee composed of a cheerleader, a pep band representative and three members elected from the student body, plus a faculty adviser.

Students may nominate themselves or be nominated on forms available at the Senate office. Deadline for nominations is Jan. 6.

Unanimously passed was a resolution introduced by the Senate Executive Committee to support a Student Body Project. SB Pres. Don Manthei asked for suggestions and informed students that all ideas for the project should be taken to the Senate office or be given to any senator.

In the resolution passed by the student body, the SB Project was reaffirmed as a Wartburg tradition. Although customarily conducted each year, student approval must be obtained before a drive can be commenced.

Take Action On Increased Construction, OK Development Of Athletic Stadium

By Herold Kurtz
TRUMPET News Editor

Dr. A. E. Haefner's resignation as dean of the faculty was accepted by the College Board of Regents at its fall meeting here Thursday. He will remain on the Wartburg faculty.

Heefner

In other action the Board:

—Authorized construction of a wing on Centennial Hall with contracts to be let early spring.

—Sanctioned further development of an athletic stadium.

—Approved a record-breaking $710,000 operating budget for the college.

—Upped tuition $5 per semester, set a $1.50 semester Student Union fee and raised dorm room rent $18 a year.

—Increased class scholarships to $100 and raised high school honor awards to $150.

—Created a $1,200 four-year scholarship to be awarded to an outstanding high school senior.

In his letter of resignation, Dr. Haefner stated that he wished to get back to classroom teaching. Effective June 30, 1956, the letter was submitted prior to his recent stroke. He will continue on the Wartburg faculty as professor of Greek. No replacement has been named to fill the position which he has held since 1951.

Hall To Get Addition

Construction of a wing on Centennial Hall, women's dorm, will begin next spring and will be completed by the fall of 1957, according to present plans. Extending south, the wing will double the present capacity of the dormitory.

More bleachers and the construction of the first unit of a college stadium will get under way next spring and summer. Other campus face-lifting includes remodeling of Old Main and the moving of three houses west of Luther Hall. Houses to be moved are those of H. C. Engelbrecht, college business manager; Dr. John Hiltner, professor of Latin and Philosophy; and the Publications House.

Increase Expenses

Increased operating expenses forced the Regents to raise tuition, despite the $96,000 subsidy by the American Lutheran Church. The $1.50 Student Union fee will go toward maintenance of the SMU and will provide for replacement and new equipment in the lounges and recreation room.

Class scholarships were raised from $75 to $100, while high school honor grants were boosted from $125 to $150. A series of competitive tests will determine to whom the newly created $1,200 high school scholarship will be awarded.

Kyer At Convo Tues.; Becker Speaks Thurs.

Dr. D. L. Kyer, former superintendent of the Independence Mental Health Institute, and Pres. C. H. Becker of Wartburg College will be the convocation speakers this coming week.

Dr. Kyer, Tuesday's convo speaker, received his master's degree at the University of New Hampshire, his Ph.D. at Harvard and his M. D. fom Boston University, School of Medicine. He served as Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at the Faculty University of Arkansas School of Medicine for two years.

Kyer is a member of the American Psychiatric Association, diplomat of the National Board of Medical Examiners and a charter member of the Maine and Arkansas Psychiatric Societies.

"A Real Man in the Sight of God" is the topic of President Becker's address for Thursday's convo. Wartburg Band will provide the Christmas music.

Deadline Dec. 19

With several groups already working on entries for the TRUMPET sponsored Christmas decorations contest, one week still remains until the Dec. 19 deadline. All entries must be announced in the dean of students office no later than 12 noon Dec. 19.

Haefner In Hospital With Light Stroke

Dean of the Faculty A. E. Haefner was reported to be in "satisfactory" condition at Mercy Hospital after suffering a light stroke last Sunday.

Dr. Haefner, who also teaches Greek, will remain in the hospital for several weeks, according to college officials, and then is expected to resume his work after the Christmas holidays.

Music Festival Here Today With Mass Concert At 8

Bremer County Music Festival, being held today on the college campus, will combine high school bands and choruses of Bremer County in a concert tonight at 8 in Knights Gym.

Mass band and chorus rehearsals of an estimated three hundred members each opened the festival this morning.

Rehearse This Afternoon

This afternoon the individual bands and choruses rehearse under the direction of a guest conductor from one of the other schools. Rehearsals are being held at Waverly High and at Wartburg.

This evening's concert will present a varied program, including marches and novelty numbers. Among the highlights will be "Oklahoma," "American Folk Rhapsody," by Grundman, and "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral" by Wagner.

7 Schools Participating

Seven schools, Sumner, Waverly, Janesville, Denver, Reedlyn, Tripoli and Plainfield are taking part in the festival. It is under the direction of the music directors of Bremer County high schools. Host director in Waverly is Leland Lillehaug. A Wartburg graduate, George Gundacker, is the director at Readlyn.

Admission to the concert is 25 cents for high school and college students and 50 cents for adults.

Becker Calls Confab 'Historic'

By Myrne See
TRUMPET Feature Writer

Home from the White House Conference on Education in Washington, D.C., which ended Dec. 1, Wartburg's president, Dr. C. H. Becker, referred to the assembly as "perhaps the greatest in education history."

Pres. C. H. Becker . . .
discusses education.

Dr. Becker was appointed by Iowa Gov. Leo Hoegh to serve as one of 21 voting delegates allotted Iowa on the basis of population.

The 1,600 regular delegates, 300 organizational representatives and 100 observers, who convened in the Sheraton Park Hotel, represented all 48 states and five territories. Observers from 30 foreign countries were present in native costume.

Ike Talks On Film

At the Monday evening opening session, the 2,000 participants received a greeting from President Eisenhower, filmed at his Gettysburg, Pa., home. This was followed by an address by Vice Pres. Richard Nixon.

"The segregation question came up again and again," commented Dr. Becker, "but there was never an official report on it."

'Distilled Thinking'

"The term 'distilled thinking of the total assembly' was used repeatedly to describe this method of discussing the issues," Dr. Becker explained.

Only one-third of the delegates were professional educators. Two manufacturers, a chemist, a labor leader and a woman active in school reorganization were among those at the same discussion table as the Wartburg College president. Ten different states were represented.

"They were people from the grass roots, interested in education from the viewpoint of parents and people in the community," Dr. Becker commented on the representation.

Shakes Nixon's Hand

As a high point near the close of the conference, Dr. Becker mentioned waiting an hour and a half to shake the hand of Vice Pres. Nixon at a reception in the National Gallery of Art. Another was the concluding address in which Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion B. Folsom "openly and forcefully promised federal aid to education."

As outgrowths of the White House Conference, Dr. Becker feels we can look for continued interest in education on the local level, an upsurge in the construction of elementary and secondary schools and forthcoming federal aid to schools.

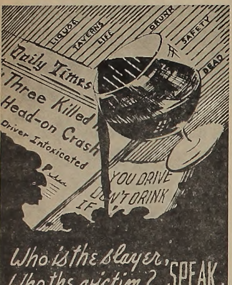
The Cup Runs Over



—By John Salem

Death Smiles On Highway

Only a hairline of luck separates a close call in driving from an accident. Many statistics can be found about all phases of automobile accidents, but there are no statistics to recount the phenomenal number of near misses that occur upon our nation's highways every driving hour.

Following is only one example of these common encounters with Fate:

On a quiet Iowa afternoon prior to Thanksgiving, a carload of students was driving east on Highway 30 in eastern Iowa when another automobile suddenly swung around a curve and blocked the road.

An elderly man sat at the wheel, seemingly frozen as he stared blankly at the sudden, the unexpected that appeared about to happen. He was the guilty one, yet there was no guilt written on his face, only a sudden and awful realization of fear. For a moment, death seemed to smile at the students over the new shatter-proof windshields that could never remain shatter-proof when confronted with a head-on collision.

The alert student driver headed for the shoulder, where even the loose gravel and mud appeared a welcome sight. Suddenly, the elderly man swerved in and drove on. A crash had been averted. Death had been cheated.

Afterwards no one spoke of the trouble the old man had nearly caused. These narrow misses were becoming too much of an everyday occurrence to think much about.

"As long as you get by" seems to be the attitude of many of the young and old drivers today. This attitude must be changed if accidents are to decrease in number.

Accidents can be prevented—moreover close calls can be prevented if drivers would only think of what the consequences might be before taking chances.

There are two good ways to prevent brushes with death on the highway: DON'T TAKE CHANCES and DON'T FORCE YOUR LUCK.

Footnotes To Faith:

'Today—Only A Forgotten Tomorrow'; Altmann Takes Time To Explain Faith

By Don Altmann

Altmann

Yesterday's forgotten tomorrow is today. We can live but one day at a time — that is, one day at a time in the immediate present. Yet we do not appear to be living our lives in the present.

Instead, almost everything we do hinges either on the past or on the future. Important as the past and the future are, valuable time can be lost while we reminisce or while we dream of things to come.

It has been said that our Christianity often breaks DOWN because we do not live UP to its principles. Here is just where the problem arises. We spent a lot of time thinking about what services we have already given, so that we can say we've done our part.

Or we sit down and say to ourselves, "Yes, I'll do something about it—tomorrow." By the time tomorrow comes, our burning fire to serve has become a mere spark, for Christianity to be lived as yesterday or tomorrow.

We might apply here the old proverb: "He who hesitates is lost." Have you ever stopped to think that a soul might be lost today because we didn't try to save it yesterday?

Example after example can be cited of the things we did on that tomorrow instead of doing them on the day before. We are familiar with how far we can get behind with our work if we keep putting it off until tomorrow.

Since the work of a Christian is Christian living, we can get behind, we do get behind and we are behind in our Christian work. "Let your light so shine before men". . .

Oftentimes the best example of a true faith in Christ Jesus is the living, radiant, shining example of Christ shining forth through us.

Why should we be satisfied in being Christians one day a week when we have the opportunity to be Christians every day of our lives?

By doing today the things we should do today, our prayer life in Him will be strengthened, we can form a faith in Him that is built on solid rock and we can let our light so shine that we might still be in time to lead a stumbling friend from darkness into Light Eternal in Christ.

The times that are before us are tense times. So much more essential is it that the Christian does not despair or shirk his responsibility. If we live UP to Christian principles our Christianity will not break DOWN. If we are truly faithful in Him and to Him, we should not and will not have a tomorrow's forgotten yesterday—today.

We will then have a today that has been full of Christian experience and joy, which through faith will assure us of a place in His Eternal Kingdom, all because we did not realize that today offers the same opportunity

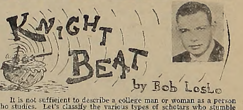
Constructive suggestions for the newspaper included "more news about coming events," "better coverage of music recitals" and "more complete news on the intramural program."



It is not sufficient to describe a college man or woman as a person who studies. Let's classify the various types of scholars who stumble into, and quietly slip out of, the social sanctity of Wartburg College. with girls.

Husband Hunter—nastiest of the female species, this person has no other reason for being in school than that which her name implies. She studies, so that she can be classified as intelligent—not profound, but intelligent. This student is readily identified by the gleam that lights up in her eye when she passes a poor, innocent pre-the or future school teacher. Beware, this type is armed and may be dangerous.

All-nighter—this student can be identified by the heavy bags under his eyes and the unshaven, haggard look on his face. His steady diet consists of Den coffee and cigarettes. The BMOC (Big Man On Campus) fits into this category. He is in so many organizations and committees that the only time he finds for studying is after the witching hour. The all-nighter species are experts at turning out term papers in two days.

Bull Slinger—this fellow doesn't spend his time studying, sleeping or belonging to organizations. He, as well as the rest of the intellects in the dorm, concerns himself with things of a more important measure—like who will win next year's World Series or whether or not Marilyn Monroe has more sex appeal than Jane Russell. He can tell you the batting averages of every man on the Yankees or how much work is required to chop and channel a hot rod. He has a detailed plan worked out on how to slip "Rock Around the Clock" on the Old Main public address system in place of the usual chimes. But ask him once what tomorrow's assignment is in English lit.

Complainer—probably this classification comes closest to including all of the Wartburg students. The cafeteria food is lousy, or the Den coffee tastes like battery acid, or the social life at Wartburg is inadequate, or Wartburg girls are cold-blooded, or the cut system is unfair, or Iowa doesn't have daylight saving time or the Little Theater is painted blue instead of green. If he didn't have anything to complain about he would suffer a severe case of frustration.

GLOBULAR GLIBBLINGS

Hope For Existence Hinges On WW III

By Don Oberdorfer

Oberdorfer

One of the most interesting areas of political interest in the world today is the factor of world peace. When one looks at the situation today, one sees that the two main parties involved are the Communists and the United States.

The topic which was discussed in World Affairs Forum Wednesday evening was concerned with this problem of war and peace. The Third World War is now being fought. The participants are the U. S. and Russia—Russia is winning.

In the time which has elapsed between World War II and the present, Russia has conquered 600,000,000 people and has taken over the governments of many countries. What has the U. S. accomplished during this period of time? Nothing!

True we have placed preventive measures against the orward surge of the Communists; however, we have done ttle to regain the lost advanges which have passed us by.

e Communists have taken over the Eastern part of Europe and much of Asia. Now they are working desperately on the East Indies and the Middle East. The indifferent attitude of the U. S. can easily be seen in its treatment of the Egyptian arms problem and the dispute between Israeli and the Arab states.

The United States must attempt to win the confidence of the other countries by means other than arms. It must convince the people that it is going to show utmost confidence in their representative governments and in their actions for world peace.

The general attitude of the members of the forum seemed to be that the United States should employ different means of combating the enemies at the present time. If one takes a glance at the methods employed by the Communists, it can be easily seen why an arms race is not the answer.

The techniques used by the Russians include propaganda, insurrections, assassinations, infiltrations and trade. Much of the territory gained is through the process of causing civil war, which will split a nation in half. Then the Communists step in, put together the pieces and set up a puppet government of their own.

If the United States is to actively participate in this war, it must fight fire with fire. It was suggested that an active interest be taken in an effort to effect a balance of power. It is imperative that the U. S. do this.

World War I was called the "war to end wars." World War II was called the "war for peace." But World War III is certainly the war to guarantee existence.

THE TRUMPET RECOMMENDS

Read This; Go Crazy With Schroeder

By Duana Schroeder

Schroadar

"It's a wonderful thing just to sit down and figure out how many ways there are to be crazy."

One way is to go to college and another is to read a small anthology of humor called "A Subtreasury of American Humor."

Edited by E. B. and K. S. White, this compilation of some of the funniest prose and poetry written in America has had an amazing history. The above quotation is taken from that book.

It was published for the first time in 1941 by Coward-McCann and has had eight printings since. It was a Book-of-the-Month Club salaction in '42. The Modarn Library edition came out in '48. It was condensed into en Armed Services publication in '44, end this year the abridged volume came out in the form of e pocket book.

The book is divided into nine sections filled with an abundance of stories, poems and essays by 48 of the 20th century's outstanding humorists. Included are such men as Ogden Nash, James Thurber, Robert Benchley, Clarence Day, Ring Lardner, Sinclair Lewis and a bevy of other outstanding names.

In the first section, entitled "Stories and People," excerpts from Sinclair Lewis's book "Babbitt" and a short story by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, "Benny and the Bird Dogs," are used. Neither author is classified as a humorist, but these bits jar their reputations as serious writers. Few excerpts or selected chapters from novels are used in the anthology, but the selections are of such a choice that they make the reader want to read the rest of the book from which it is taken.

Humorous dilemmas, parodies, satire, verse, reminiscences, a little burlesque and a few cartoons are thrown into the volume with rare ingenuity.

"Subtreesury of American Humor" is not intended to be compiete or historicel, by any means. The editors found thet tesk a little too embitious. So they tried to pick tha best.

Both E. B. and K. S. White are duly suited for the task. Katherine S. White has been an editor for "The New Yorker Magazine," a humor magazine in its own right, for some time. E. B. White, an outstanding humorist, who has some of his own pieces in the book, has written "The Second Tree from the Corner," which was an outstanding best-seller.

Editor and author, husband and wife, both are qualified for the job which they have achieved with so much success.

Cords Completes Casting For 'Dust Of Road,' Christmas Play To Be Presented December 20

Warner

After two days of casting for the Christmas play, "Dust of the Road" by Kenneth Goodman, Director Shirley Cords, senior, selected the four people to fill the roles in the one-act play to be presented Dec. 20 at convocation and at evening chapel.

John Werner, sophomore, comes to the stage for the second time this year as he portrays the part of a tramp. The tramp is the spirit of Judas Iscariot, who returns to earth one day each year to go about doing good.

An element of greed is created in the story by a man and wife, Peter and Prudence Steele, who will be portrayed by John Bertrand, senior, and sophomore Joan Strudthoff, making her first appearance on the stage this year. This will be Bertrand's second.

The final character is that of an old man to be played by sophomore Henry Flessner.

Topics Announced For Sun. Sessions

Leaders and their topics for this week's Bible Discussion Groups include seniors Mary Hob, "Talents"; Jackie Reents, "Romans 6"; Bob Vogel, "Evangelism"; and Wayne Landgrebe, "The Seed Growing Secretly (Mark 4:26-29)."

Others are juniors Milton Ost, "David, the Man"; Bob Wessels, "Plan of Salvation"; Ed Schneider, "The Lord's Prayer"; and Art Margheim, "Israel's Rise."

Discussion groups are held each Sunday at 9 a.m. in the Parish House of St. Paul's Church.

Campus Community Chest Shows $678 With More Next Week

With final tabulations to be completed next week, the Campus Community Chest reports a collection of $678, according to Chest treasurer Charles Maahs, sophomore.

Although considerably below the goal of $1,000, Chest Chairman Mel Frahm still considers it to be satisfactory, since this is the first time a project such as this has been undertaken at Wartburg.

The money collected will be divided as follows:

—$100 to the Student Memorial Fund;

—11 per cent to the Student Emergency Fund;

—33 per cent to Lutheran Student Action;

—15 per cent each to the Bartels Home for the Aged and the Waverly Children's Home;

—7 per cent each to the American Heart Foundation and the Cancer Fund;

—12 per cent to the International Christian University of Japan.

New Math Course To Be Offered Here

"Modern Algebra," a new mathematics course, will be offered here second semester, according to Engineering Department head Dr. John Chellevold.

Offering three hours of credit, the course will be open to anyone who has taken first year mathematics.

Organ Students Recital Tuesday Eve In Old Main

Students of Dr. E. A. Hovdesven and Warren Schmidt, both of the Music Department, will present an organ recital Tuesday evening at 8 in Old Main.

Included in the recital are seniors Rudy Inselmann and Alberta Brandt; junior Alice Vorthmann, Carolyn Adix, Jeanette Schmierer and Valeria Johnson; sophomore Pat Durre; and freshmen Richard Steege and William Gervais.

Directors Ponder Speaker Installation

Installation of speakers and an amplifier in the Student Union was the major topic of discussion at the Union Council meeting Tuesday evening.

Providing background music, these speakers would be located in the Den, cafeteria and game room. The cost would be approximately 200 dollars for six to ten speakers, one hundred dollars for the amplifiers and fifty dollars for the possible purchase of a record player.

One speaker may be placed in the cafeteria on a temporary basis in order to determine student reaction and to decide further action by the council.

The council noted that Christmas trees were set up and action was taken to buy lights and tinsel. A request was made by the group that no signs be placed in the Student Union except on the bulletin board.

Engineers' Tests Due

Engineering students who have not taken mechanical competence tests should contact W. G. Fruehling, head of the testing bureau, as soon as possible, according to Dr. John Chellevold, Engineering Department head.

Larson, Abramson Stage Sunday Recital In LT

A mixed recital by the students of Miss Jean Abramson, instructor in piano, and C. Robert Larson, vocal instructor, will be presented at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Little Theater.

International LL Committees Convene On Campus

Meeting on the Wartburg campus this weekend are the Executive Committee and Project Committees of the International Luther League.

Beginning with a group discussion in the Fuchs Lounge yesterday, the LL Committees hope to wind up business tomorrow. Purpose of this meeting is to plan the material to be used in the LL's five projects for the coming year: Spiritual Growth, Service, Literature, Choral Union and Recreation. Promoters and members of the Committees of the Luther League are attending the three-day meeting.

The Rev. Chester Patten, Assistant Youth Director of the ALC, is attending the meeting. Members of the Executive Committee of the LL who are in attendance are Pres. George Utech; vice presidents, Bob Vogel, Wartburg senior, and Glenn Wolff; and Secretary Eleanor Koester.

Miss Phyllis Reeck, Columbus, Ohio, Luther League office secretary, and Wartburg students Erv Janssen and Helen Rae Mueller, committee members, are also in attendance.

Deadline Set Wed. For Castle Tales

Entrance deadline for Castle Tales, campus literary magazine, is Wednesday.

Short stories are in demand, according to senior Elizabeth Martin, editor. Poems, sketches and feature articles will also be accepted.

Articles can be given to Elizabeth Martin, Box 224; Shirley Cords, Box 909; or Miss Margaret Wolff, Journalism Department head, at the Publications house.

DR HOLM CHI RHO VISITOR

Dr. Bernard Holm, president of Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque, will address Chi Rho members Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Little Theater. He will speak on the problems and effects of the forthcoming church merger.

Cagers' Rally Falls Short In 76-75 Loss

Wesleyan Retains 41-40 Halftime Lead To Gain Second Iowa Conference Victory

By Dale Kopitzke
TRUMPET Sports Editor

Despite a torrid comeback in the waning seconds last night, the Wartburg bucketmen fell before Iowa Wesleyan, 76-75, in their Iowa Conference opener at Mount Pleasant.

The loss gave the Knights a 1-2 season record and a 0-1 loop mark. For Wesleyan, it was win number two in six games and their second conference victory in as many starts. Tonight Wartburg meets Parsons, pre-season conference favorite, at Fairfield.

John Adix popped in a jump shot from the right side seconds after the opening whistle sounded to give Wartburg a 2-0 lead. Setting a fast pace, the Knights fashioned an early 8-2 advantage, but Wesleyan bounced back to keep the score even. The lead constantly swayed back and forth the first half, with Wesleyan finally pulling ahead at the mid-mark, 41-40.

Al Injures Ankle

Al Bahlmann injured his ankle in a wild scramble for the ball in the first half and may see only limited action tonight. Knight cagers were cold at the outset of the second period and fell nine points off the pace with eight minutes left to play.

Hitting in streaks, the Oppiemen climbed to within one point as the clock showed two minutes of playing time remaining. Bob Peterson, Wesleyan substitute, clinched the game when he came off the bench with two minutes left and tossed in three straight buckets to give the Tigers an insurmountable seven point lead.

Knights Fight Back

The Knights fought back doggedly picking up four more points. With nine seconds left, Bahlmann countered on a rebound, chopping the deficit to one point but the clock plays no favorites and time ran out.

Fouls proved costly for the hardwood locals as they outscored the Tigers, 32-28, from the field, but collected only 11 gift shots to Wesleyan's 20.

Wartburg controlled the boards, grabbing 58 rebounds to the host's 39. Mel Frahm, Knight center, gathered in 19.

Wartburg hit at a 41 per cent clip, getting 32 field goals in 78 attempts, while Wesleyan meshed the net 28 times in 74 shots for a 38 per cent shooting average.

Wartburg 67; St. Mary's 63

Overcoming a six-point half time deficit, Knight hoopsters recorded win number one in their home opener last Saturday night, as they spilled St. Mary's 67-63 in Knights Gym.

With the score knotted 57-57 in the final frame, the Knights clinched the game with a 10-point splurge, in which each of the starters hit a field goal, and then coasted to the win.

I'm Not The Coach, But...

By Stark Wreelism

If TRUMPET sports writers have their way—and history shows they often do—then the 1955-'56 version of the Wartburg basketball team should cop its second straight Iowa Conference championship.

Twice in the last three years, this newspaper's athletic scribblers have predicted the winners of the Iowa cage conference. In the '52-'53 and '54-'55 basketball seasons, Wartburg was picked to win the loop crown, and the Knights did just that.

But in the '53-'54 season, the crystal ball fogged up, no one attended the seance sessions and the scribes had to resort to mere guesswork, picking Loras to wind up first when actually nearly everyone knew Luther was destined to win that year.

So it's with a feeling of pride and confidence that ol' Stark and the rest of the TRUMPET sports staff approach the hallowed ground of the sports forecasters and reveal their predictions for the forthcoming Iowa Conference battle.

According to the sports prognosticators, Parsons, fresh from an Iowa Conference football championship, will be breathing heavily down the Knights' jerseys. With 10 lettermen returning from last year's third-place squad and 6'7" Ron Kester working the boards, the Parsons aggregation will be strong.

Luther is a second-division club in this year's loop which shows all indications of being one of the stronger conferences in the Midwest. Iowa Wesleyan is long on height and will be pushing toward the top.

Jump shot artist Bill Reid should give the Dubuque fans something to yell about, but nothing in the way of a championship appears to be in store for them.

Campbell's Squad Triumphs, 89-78

Assistant Coach Bob Campbell's junior varsity squad bucketed its way to an 69 to 76 victory over the Readlyn city team last Monday night in the Knights Gym.

The "B" squad is composed of freshmen and sophomores only. No one past his sophomore year may see action with the second squad.

The starters included Duane Boehmke, James Schwarz, Roger Klingman, Charles Maahs and Milt Reisen. Boehmke, Schwarz and Reisen combined to tally 41 points.

Knight Matmen At TC Today For AAU Meet; Johansen Gunning For Experience, Competition

By Gary Blohm
TRUMPET Sports Writer

Experience and a taste of competitive wrestling is Coach Norm Johansen's announced purpose in entering the Iowa State Teachers College invitational wrestling meet being held today at Cedar Falls.

Many of Coach Jo's matmen will be making their debuts on the college mat. With the exception of the three returning lettermen, Wendell Wilharm, Merle Funk and Tom Glidewell, all squad members will have to prove themselves.

Glidewell

Jo To Enter All Men

Johansen hopes to enter all men who are working out. He feels this initial contact at an open meet may give the novice wrestlers more assurance.

ISTC-AAU Annual Meet

The ISTC-AAU invitational is an annual meet. The preliminaries began at 9 a.m., and the semifinals at 2 p.m. The meet consists of several divisions, but the Wartburg matmen will compete mainly in the open division.

Colleges competing include Wartburg, Iowa State, University of Iowa, Iowa State Teachers, Cornell and Coe.

Knights Face Parsons Tonight

By Bill Malvin
TRUMPET Sports Writer

Wartburg, defending Iowa Conference champion, and Parsons, the team regarded as most likely to succeed this year, clash in one of the highlights of the young basketball season tonight at Fairfield in the Parsons Gymnasium.

The strong Parsons squad has rolled to three victories this season, trouncing non-conference foes Culver Stockton, 83-64, and St. Ambrose, 82-77, and gaining its first conference victory by edging Central Tuesday night, 87-84.

Oppermann

Sparked by the return from service of Ron Kester, 6' 7" center, during the second semester last year, Parsons compiled a 10-6 conference record to finish third behind Wartburg and Central.

'We'll Be Tough'—Parsons Coach

Coach O. B. Nelson, commenting on this year's Parsons' squad, said optimistically, "With 10 lettermen, we'll be tough!"

John Smith has led the Parsons scoring attack this season, pouring 72 points through the hoop from his guard position. Forward Rod Smith has connected for 60 points and an even 20-per-game average. Despite being held to two points by St. Ambrose, Kester contributed 32 points in the first three games.

Next Tuesday night at 9, Coach Earnest Oppermann's Knights meet Dubuque University in the home conference opener at Knights Gymnasium.

Spartans Improved Over Last Year

Managing only one victory in three starts this season, the Spartans are still regarded as improved over last year. The two teams that have downed them are Cornell, defending champion of the Midwest Conference, and Platteville State, a strong Wisconsin team.

Dubuque has six veterans from last year's squad. Three of them, 6'3½" Dwayne Feurchelm, 6'1" Bill Reid and 6'5" Dale Schasker, are starters in the front court and have led the scoring for the Spartans in their opening games.

Probable Starting Line-ups

Nielsen	F	Bill Reid
Kester	C	Dale Schasker

Scores Read 54-6, 38-9; Football? No, Intramurals

UP, UP—but it doesn't go in. North Hall's Ralph Wolken misses this one as the Ambassadors bow to the Nights, 25-18.

Lopsided scoring and rough play highlighted the second night of Intramural League basketball competition last Thursday.

With Julian Sloter hitting the hoop for 18 points, Grossmann III in the National League waltzed into a three-way tie for first place by hanging a 54-6 loss on Harken.

American League produced a similar situation as Grossmann III furnished a 38-9 crusher for Grossmann I. Nights kept its victory march intact by spoiling North Hall's opener, 25-18. Eight free throws by Nights' Wendell Matthias spelled the difference. He ended with 12 points.

Trailer Court took a 48-27 decision from Hagen, tying the Nights for first with two victories and setting the stage for a showdown next week. Waverly defeated Alpha, 46-30.

Other games in the National League saw Sixth Street win over the Campus Trotters, 44-33; Vollmer pin a 38-22 defeat on North Hall III; and Hotshots take a 29-24 decision from North Hall II.

Pennant Hungry Keglers Close In On Cedar Lawn As Competition Gets Hot

Only one to six games separate the current league leaders from the onslaught of a pack of championship-hungry pinsters after last Wednesday's bowling in the Wartburg College Bowling League.

Schuenke

Under the damaging blows dealt by Chuck Schumann's 504 high series and the overall hot performances of Ritchie's men, the Meyer Druggists absorbed four straight setbacks ending in a three-way tie for third, while the front-runners were taking three games from Top Hatters.

Faculty's balls were rolling with damaging power against the opponents as their pin accuracy lifted them out of the lower division into a three-way tie for third—only seven games out of first place—by defeating Hill Toppers, 3-1.

Four bowlers came close to breaking into the coveted 200-game. Al Bahlmann and Chuck Schumann of Ritchie Pontiac hit 181 and 192. Fred Jaspers and John Kreilick of Cedar Lawn duplicated the feat.

Dick Schuenke of Dairy Bar topped all bowlers with a high 215 performance.

TRIPLE-THREAT ATHLETE

Art Wows 'Em On Gridiron, Diamond, Basketball Court

By Bill Malvin
TRUMPET Sports Writer

Art Margheim rates as football quarterback, basketball guard and baseball second baseman—take your pick—for this able Wartburg junior from Windsor, Colo., fills the bill at all three positions.

Before coming to Wartburg in 1953, Art was already proving his athletic prowess in high school at Windsor. He earned two letters in football, two in basketball and three in baseball during his prep days. He also participated in two Colorado state basketball tournaments with his high school team.

Despite his current junior standing, Art has already won six varsity letters at Wartburg. He has lettered at least once in every major sport.

Rates In Football

During the 1954 football season, Art connected on enough of his passes to rate among the top small college passers in the nation and was selected to the All-conference second team.

This year, despite a losing season by the Knight gridders, Margheim's passing and ball handling gained him recognition on the first string All-conference eleven.

Averaging 15 points a game on the hard court last season, Art made the first string All-conference team in basketball. If the first two games of the present season, when he connected for 26 and 28 points, are any indication, Margheim will undoubtedly again set a torrid pace in the Iowa Conference.

Art Second Baseman

Looking forward to spring, Art will probably again fill the second base position on the Knight baseball team this year. In this sport he rates as a consistent fielder and a good bitter.

When asked about this year's Iowa Conference basketball race, Art replied, "Wartburg has a good chance to win the Iowa Conference championship." schedule.

Winning the conference basketball title last year was one of the greatest thrills of his career, Art stated, but he also rates the St. Ambrose victory and the Luther game, when he scored 35 points, as other highlights.

34

Wartburg's foes will probably sigh with relief after next year when they know that they've seen the last of Art Margheim as a quarterback, a guard and a second baseman.
